The amazing performances of the riders in last year's FIM Motocross World Championships and the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations, once again confirms these FIM Motocross championships remains the premier outdoor off-road series on the planet.

At the start of the new decade, let us just reflect on the success of this challenging sport. Success never comes easy. You could compare the sport of Motocross to an iceberg. MXGP is the tip of the iceberg. It is 'big', but what is hidden under the water is 'huge'. It involves many passionate people without whose efforts and sacrifices Motocross would not be what it is. It starts with the families and clubs who are there to help the young riders, then come coaches, trainers, teams and manufacturers, the many national federations and their volunteers, the Continental Unions and the FIM Championship Promotor. It is thanks to the work and efforts of these many 'unsung heroes' that the sport has reached the high and professional level it enjoys today. These people have paved the road for the many talented riders that are gracing Motocross today and they continue to do so. For this we can only be in admiration and thank them for the present and future generations of riders to come.

This progress and talent have not gone unnoticed. Sponsors are lining up to be part of the FIM Motocross World Championship. Vast numbers of fans attend the MXGP events, some of them even travelling from one event to another. Many TV channels broadcast the epic MXGP battles around the globe which results in a huge number of followers on social media. What started as 'scrambling' in Great Britain and Europe in the 1920s has now become the 'MXGP Circus', which travels to different continents and new venues around the World.

I have no doubt that 2020 will be another exciting chapter in the FIM Motocross books. Therefore, I would like to congratulate and thank our promoter Infront Moto Racing, the manufactures, teams and sponsors, the local organisers, national federations, FIM officials, volunteers, media and fans Worldwide – and last but not least the riders - who altogether are part of the passionate FIM Motocross family. The stage is set, the actors and people behind the scene are ready. May you all have a safe, successful and enjoyable season.

Jorge Viegas
FIM President

A new decade has just started and we are eager to find out what it has in store for MXGP as we can see that new challenges are looming in the horizon, yet at the FIM/CMS we can proudly say that our partners at Infront Moto Racing have already paved the way during the last two decades to be able to lead these new challenges.

This season not only will the MXGP series take all the Motocross supporters to brand new venues such as the Iitti-KymiRing in Finland or intu-Xanadú in Spain, but the MXGP will also come back to classic venues around the world in the calendar and the pinnacle of the year, the Monster Energy FIM MXoN, will take us all to Ernée in France to put an end to this promising season. It goes without saying that every single year the organization of an MXGP becomes more and more demanding from different sporting points and it is thanks to the enthusiasm that MXGP organizers ooze that the demands can be matched so we have to be thankful for their comprehension, their efforts and generosity.

Bearing in mind that it is due to the gratitude, the understanding and unconditional support of all the teams, riders, mechanics and the family members that are part of this extraordinary group of people, who week on week off, travel the distance to do their best to be on top and offer all the MXGP passionate fans their very essence to make MXGP so unique.

Finally, I would like to enhance and show our gratitude to all those who voluntarily are part of the teams that make up the organization of every MXGP, whatever their task, as they are of paramount importance within the event.

I wish you all who make the MXGP series a reality, an excellent year no matter what brings you here or where you come from to be part of the best Motocross Series of the World.

Antonio Alia Portela
FIM/CMS Director

Dear MXGP Friends, The 2020 MXGP World Championship season is just around the corner.

The last season has been fantastic in terms of intensity and crowned great champions in both categories with Tim Gajser and Jorge Prado. From Argentina to Assen in The Netherlands for the annual Monster Energy Motocross of Nations, the season brought together those passionate about motocross from all around the world, touching directly 15 different countries for 19 races.

The climax of the season was undoubtedly the victory of the Dutch team in Assen in front of a massive patriotic fans and the presence of H.M The King of The Netherlands Willem-Alexander as first supporter. But also 2019 was the first time ever that MXGP went to The People's Republic of China, opening a huge new window for our sport in Asia, in the biggest market in the world. The MXGP is continuing its growth every year. Once again 2019 season has been followed by a huge number of people on TV worldwide. With TV Broadcasters like Eurosport for Europe, CBS Sports Network for USA, Canada and FOX Sport for Latin America and Asia and Oceania, the past season showed more than 13 500 hours of programs to the Motocross fans. More important than ever, the social networks are also connecting MXGP directly to its huge fans worldwide. MXGP Facebook's page continues its fantastic growth with 2 900 000 followers, Instagram's profile is becoming more and more popular with 900 000 followers and Twitter counts 72 000 fans. Infront Moto Racing produces also a monthly digital magazine related to all the latest news about the season, the different Grand Prix, the FIM regulations, the partners, the teams and rider profiles. Since 2013, the MXGP MAG has been downloaded more than 1,9 millions times.

Season after season, MXGP Pro The Official Motocross Videogames allows all the fans to play with their favorite riders from MXGP or MX2. The off-road motorcycle videogame best seller has sold more than 1.8 millions copies worldwide. Since 2012, Infront Moto Racing has been a pioneer with the On Demand video services, providing fans with MXGP Live on the internet with MXGP-TV.com. Last year, 1,5 millions unique people used MXGP-TV to enjoy the Grand Prix directly from their computers, mobiles or tablets to follow the MXGP season but also the different European Championships. Finally, the MXGP's YouTube channel is continuing to provide free video content to more than 200 000 followers and completed more than 96 millions views from its creation.

The media center was also very busy in 2019 with more than 1 900 journalists and photographers covering the season and the different Grand Prix hosted a total of 618 000 spectators with 74 000 people attending to the 2019 Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations in Assen – The Netherlands. The 2020 MXGP calendar will be very exciting with 20 Grand Prix's and the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations will make a come-back to France – Ernée. The demand from the organizers to host a Grand Prix has been increasing every year, with the quality of services and infrastructures offered by them reaching new highs. The Grand Prix program is fantastic with the addition of the different European Championships and the Women World Championship during the same weekend. Thanks to the decision of Infront Moto Racing some years ago to invest in the younger categories the EMX125cc and the EMX250cc, the level of riders has never been so high. We will witness this year probably the best season in the history of MXGP with a fantastic line up of stars like Gajser, Cairoli, Herlings, Prado, Febvre, Paulin, Desalle, Seewer, Coldenhoff and many more who will try to challenge for the opportunity to be crowned World Champion, with the MX2 championship more open than ever.

In cooperation with the FIM, FIM-Europe, Infront Moto Racing, local organizers, manufactures, teams, riders, media, sponsors and with the great support received from the MXGP fans today MXGP has become the most popular off-road motorcycle championship in the world. Infront Moto Racing would like to thank all these indispensable partners who believe in MXGP and support its growth.

I wish to everybody a great MXGP season.

David Luongo

ELECTRIC RACING REVOLUTION

KTM SX-E5

The new age of motocross has arrived. The KTM SX-E 5 is a high-end, electric-powered mini crosser for young chargers aiming to be the next motocross superhero. With six riding modes delivering strong but controlled power, this torquey pocket rocket is READY TO RACE where others can't, thanks to drastically reduced noise and zero emissions.

KTM wishes to make all motorcyclists aware that they need to wear the prescribed protective gear, only start the electric vehicle for the first time after receiving a high-voltage safety briefing from an authorised KTM dealer and always ride in a responsible manner in accordance with the relevant and applicable provisions of the road traffic regulations. The illustrated vehicles may vary in selected details from the production models and some illustrations feature optional equipment available at additional cost.

TIM GAJSER THE 2019 MXGP WORLD CHAMPION

The 2019 season has been one of the most consistent for Team HRC's Tim Gajser, but it's hard to say who Tim Gajser is just looking at his 2019 results. Tim Gajser started his motocross life when he was only 3 years old and in 2006 Tim Gajser finished third in the 65cc European Championship at the tender age of seven. In 2007 the Slovenian entered the EMX65 championship again, getting his first European title and 2 years later he did the same in the 85cc class.

In 2010 he made his debut in the EMX125 Championship and in 2012, the then fifteen-year-old rider dominated everything winning the EMX125 Championship title and the FIM 125cc Junior Motocross World Champion. In 2013 Gajser made his debut in the FIM MX2 World Championship and eleventh was his best result at the MXGP of Germany, and after missing a few rounds, he finished twentieth overall. In 2014 Honda Gariboldi picked him up and the Slovenian turned out to be the star of that year, his first full season in MX2, with nine top five overalls and six podiums finishes.

He ended fifth in 2014 and he won the MX2 title in 2015. The opening rounds of the 2015 FIM Motocross World Championship in Qatar, Thailand and Patagonia Argentina were not the best for Tim, but he managed to turn things around when he returned to Europe and claimed his first ever MX2 race win and first ever grand prix overall victory at the MXGP of Trentino, Italy. After an injury and a couple of races where he struggled for podium finishes, the eighteen-year-old rider was able to regroup heading into the final four rounds and showed his potential to clinch his first ever world title.

In 2016 Tim Gajser, whose nicknames are 'Tiga' or 'GT243', was nothing short of extraordinary. He showed the maturity of a world war veteran with his whopping 247 laps led, 8 qualifying race wins, 15 race victories, 7 grand prix wins and 15 podiums out of 17. There was no rider deserving the MXGP crown in 2016 more than Tim Gajser.

Tim Gajser continued to break records being the first rider in history who won back-to-back titles in MX2 and MXGP. 2017 and 2018 were not the best for the young Slovenian; the 2017 campaign kicked off with him as title defender in Qatar and already at the first race the fair battle between the two World Champions Gajser and Cairoli was clear. But an unfortunate season featuring crashes and injuries stopped him to reach the top steps of the podium managing to finish the season in 5th position.

After several ups-and-downs in 2017, the Slovenian started off the 2018 season with a big injury which forced him to skip the opening round of the season in order to recover properly. He finished the 2018 season without any victories in his pockets, but managing to reach the 4th position in the championship.

In 2019 Tim Gajser found again his motivation and his consistency helped him to win his third motocross world title after a brilliant season breaking many records such as seven rounds win-streak as a Honda rider. He had a solid year starting off in Argentina with a second place and continuing with great performances in Great Britain and Netherlands, and his first GP victory was in Trentino, Italy. Tim Gajser has clinched 9 GP wins this season and reached 15 podiums and won a total of 16 races. He obtained his second MXGP title with three GP's to go in Imola, Italy, in front of thousands of Slovenian spectators.

Then it was onto the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations in Assen where Tim Gajser helped Team Slovenia into the final. In the first race, Gajser got a good jump out of the gate, picking up 1 out of 2 FOX holeshots that weekend. Gajser had a really strong ride and went on to win the opening MXGP & MX2 combined race and was second in the MXGP & Open race, giving him the overall in the MXGP category. With his impressive performance in Assen, he helped Slovenia to 13th place in the Nations standings, finishing the year off on a high.

JORGE PRADO

THE 2019 MX2 WORLD CHAMPION

The 18-year-old Jorge Prado is probably one of the most talented riders in the world. His World Championship career started back in 2011 when the Spanish kid won the 65cc Junior Motocross World Championship in Cingoli, Italy, the same year he won the EMX65 title, too.

KTM noticed something special on the Spaniard sensation and Prado's family moved to Belgium in order to support him to start a professional career as a motocross rider. They moved from Lugo to Lommel and in 2015 his efforts were paid off as Prado won the EMX125 Championship. In 2016 he entered the EMX250 class, one of the most competitive ones, but without shining as he used to do in the previous years, so once the Championship was over, he made his debut in the FIM MX2 World Championship as a wild card. The first GP he lined up was at the deep sandy track of Assen, where he found himself battling with the experienced Championship leader Jeffrey Herlings. A confident Jorge Prado started first in race 2 and he managed to lead for 15 minutes putting his name among the few riders who have been able to lead on Jeffrey Herlings.

In 2017 Jorge Prado lined up in MX2 finishing 7th in the Championship standings with three GP wins, being the first one in Pietramurata, Trentino, and repeating his success in the sandy tracks of Lommel and Assen.

In 2018 Jorge Prado moved to the Italian side of Red Bull KTM Factory Racing and Claudio and Davide De Carli took the challenge to guide the young Spanish rider to the top of the MX2 class. However, the Spanish rider got injured before the start of season and could not perform at his best during the first rounds of the 2018, but he managed to regroup and won the fourth Grand Prix in Trentino, Italy. After that race Prado was unbeatable winning in Portugal, Germany, France, Ottobiano and the two Indonesian rounds, showing an experienced and matured rider to the world. Prado, who was known as a sand specialist, proved his outstanding skills also on hard track, and left the Czech Grand Prix with the red plate on his KTM and kept it until the last round of the championship in Imola, Italy, where he arrived knowing he was already the 2018 FIM MX2 World Champion as his rival Jonass was not going to take part in the event. The Spanish rider ended the season in style by winning the Italian GP with 1-1.

Jorge Prado's 2018 season was nothing short of impressive, the 17-year old became the first Spanish MX2 World Champion via 10 pole positions, 331 laps in the lead, 26 holeshots out of 40, 17 individual race wins, 12 overall victories and 17 podiums. Prado scored 873 points in 20 rounds of racing averaging 43.6 points per race of the maximum of 50.

Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Jorge Prado saw his main rival Pauls Jonass moving into the main class, but he was fully motivated to defend the MX2 title against all his other opponents. The 2019 season started with a perfect 1-1 in Argentina, but then he was forced to miss the British GP in Matterley Basin due to an injury sustained during training. After his comeback at the 3rd stop of the season in Valkenswaard, the Netherlands, the young Spanish rider won every single GP except in Sweden, where he was crowned MX2 World Champion for the second time, with still two Grand Prix left.

Jorge Prado won the first race at the MXGP of Sweden ahead of Vialle and Jacobi and it was enough to ensure his back-to-back title in MX2. Jorge Prado had his greatest career results in 2019 with 12 pole positions, 470 laps led, 31 race wins and 16 GP wins out of 18 rounds at only 18 years old. Besides, thanks to Jorge Prado KTM have now claimed the eleventh MX2 World Title in sixteen seasons.

Prado is definitely the master of starts as he dominated the FOX Holeshoot competition in 2018 with 26 black plates and in 2019 with 23.

Next up for the Spaniard was his 450cc debut in the MXGP class at the 2019 Monster Energy FIM MXoN taking place in Assen at the Netherlands. To say that Prado impressed quite a few would be an understatement. With the deep sand of the man-made circuit and the tough weather conditions, Prado rode incredibly well in the MXGP qualifying heat as he led some of the race before being passed by Jeremy Seewer and later Tim Gajser and Jeremy Van Horebeek, a group of highly experienced MXGP riders.

In the first MXGP & MX2 combined race, Prado finished the race in 3rd and 7th in the race 3 (MXGP combined OPEN). This gave many just an insight of what to expect from the young Spaniard, as he could be a real contender for the MXGP championship in 2020. And with the strong Red Bull KTM Factory squad behind him, we could see Prado make regular appearances on the podium next season.

ARGENTINA, NEUQUÉN

ROAD DIRECTIONS

By car:

From Bariloche you will drive towards the north and about 20 kms away you will find the route to Villa La Angostura which is 70 kms away. It is all paved and it has a beautiful overlook of all the coast line of Nahuel Huapi Lake.

From the North you can get here along the Seven Lakes Route, which you can take in San Martin de los Andes. You will have a 90 kms drive while observing the mountain range lakes with their awesome sights.

Frontier passages:

Cardenal Samoré Passage (former Puyehue)

It is 1314 AMSL (42° 29' 07" South Latitude – 70° 25' 91" West Longitude) and it is open all year long. It is considered the second most important in the country because it has direct communication with Puerto Montt (220 kms away) and Osorno (117 kms away) along the Chilean Austral Motorway and with all the other parts of the Chilean Patagonia.

The road is paved in almost all its stretches, you must be careful in the stretches which are still being built. It is an important commercial passage, which makes the traffic quite thick. The road is of rubble over National Route 231, it is averagely 7 metres wide and it is in good conditions. The distance to the limit is 4 kms.5

You'd always thought it would be cool to live in a big house with all your friends. And now you've done it. You live, breathe, eat, walk, swim and climb together and you all sleep in the same small cabin. Ah, feeling part of the same tribe, that's what life's all about. HISTORY

HISTORY OF THE FIM MOTOCROSS WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

The history of Motocross begins in the early 20th century when the first events took place in Great Britain, specifically during the 1920s when the first competitions known as "scrambles" were held. Once the Second World War ended, the sport started to grow from a national to an international level with the very first team event known as Motocross des Nations, racing with 500cc machines and taking place in 1947 in the Netherlands. Although the Belgian rider Auguste Mingels was faster, the team classification prevailed and Great Britain claimed the first Trophy. From then on this special event was held regularly every year, and mostly dominated by the British team until the end of the 1960s. The Trophée des Nations, team event for 250cc machines, was added in 1961, and the Coupe des Nations (for teams with 125cc motorcycles) in 1981. In 1984, the rules were changed: the three classes would race together, each time entering three riders. Currently America is the most successful Nation in this event which they have won 22 times.

Back in the 50s, on the individual level, Motocross started to grow fast, with many events held in various countries. This led the FIM to introduce the first European Championship in 1952. That maiden series was open to 500cc motorcycles and the first winner was Belgian Victor Leloup onboard an FN machine. He was followed by August Mingels in '53 and '54, before British riders John Draper and Leslie Archer took over. But another country was also reaching the top in Motocross – individual and team – in those days, beside Great Britain and Belgium, that country was Sweden.

From European to World Championship. Joel Robert (250cc) and Roger De Coster (500cc) make their name.

After five years of European Championship, Motocross took an important step forward with the series being promoted to the World Championship status in 1957 – winner was Swedish Bill Nilsson onboard an AJS machine. Still in 1957 the first European Cup for 250cc motorcycles was created to match the popularity of this upcoming discipline. This Cup would last only two years to be promoted to the European Championship status in 1959. Three years later in 1962, the 250cc class had its first World Championship with the eventual winner being legendary Husqvarna mounted Torsten Hallman from Sweden. The Swedish won the Title for two consecutive years until upcoming talent Joel Robert from Belgium steered his CZ to victory collecting the first of six titles - a record which would remain unbeaten until 2002.

Robert would win another five 250cc World Titles from 1968 until 1972, the year of birth of his countryman Stefan Everts, the man who will break all the records 30 years later.

As Japanese manufacturers entered the series in the late 60s, Joel Robert was the first World Championship winner onboard such a machine as he steered the Suzuki to victory in the 250cc class in 1970.

One year later Suzuki would win another 250cc World Title with Robert but success came also in the 500cc class. Now a myth in the sport, in 1971 Roger De Coster and Suzuki won their first 500cc Championship which was also the first of five World Titles for De Coster – all in the 500cc class.

The arrival of the 125cc World Championship. Eric Geboers and Jean Michel Bayle great ambassadors of Motocross.

In 1973 another class, the 125cc, had its dedicated European Championship, which was won for two consecutive years by Belgian André Malherbe on a Zundapp. In 1975 it became a World Championship and Gaston Rahier won the Title straight away onboard a Suzuki, the first manufacturer to ever claim a Title in all three classes.

Malherbe would exploit his early 125cc experience to collect the 500cc World Title in 1980 and 1981 as Belgium was shaping up like the most talented country for Motocross. In 1975 another Belgian, Harry Everts, took his first 250cc World Title. He will win another three Championships in his career before retiring and raising his child Stefan.

In 1982 another star entered the World Motocross Championship with Eric Geboers winning the 125cc Championship after Everts had dominated it for three consecutive years – before Everts, Japanese Akira Watanabe took the 125cc crown in 1978. Geboers would storm through the field to remarkably win all three World Titles 125cc, 250cc and 500cc granting him the nickname of Mr. 875, the sum of 125, 250 and 500. Basically Eric Geboers was the first man to ever win one World Title in each category.

Georges Jobe and Dave Thorpe would also write their names in the record books of the World Champions in these years, while exceptional young guns would come up to establish the base of the next decades of World Motocross.

French Jean Michel Bayle and Italian Alex Puzar won their first titles in 1988 and in 1990 respectively. As Puzar went on for more success in the series, Bayle first moved to Supercross, then to Road Racing collecting strong results and becoming a legend for his incredible talent in motorsports.

New generation four stroke machines enter and win World Titles. Stefan Everts begins his winning streak.

This decade of World Motocross started with the Title of Stefan Everts, currently the most successful Motocross rider ever with 10 World Titles and 101 GP wins to his credit. Onboard a Suzuki, Everts – son of Harry Everts - became World Champion in the 125cc class in 1991 to be succeeded by Greg Albertyn in 1992 as the latter became the first South African to collect a World Title in Motocross.

Albertyn would win other two World Titles in the 250cc class as the 125cc class saw Italian Alessio "Chicco" Chiodi win the Championship for three consecutive years from 1997 until 1999.

Sebastien Tortelli, another of Everts' main rivals throughout his career together with Albertijn, also passed by the 125cc World Championship, which he won in 1996, before winning in 250cc in 1998.

French countryman Frederic Bolley succeeded to Tortelli in 1999 and 2000 winning two consecutive 250cc Titles.

With new generation four stroke machines becoming popular in the GP campaign in 1999 came the first World Title. Yamaha mounted Andrea Bartolini was the first rider to win a Championship with such a machine beating Joel Smets, the 500cc Title winner in the previous two years and also in 2000.

Youthstream celebrates Stefan Everts and the new generation during the years of records. Women and Veterans racing dedicated series.

The last years have seen Motocross develop very quickly courtesy of the professional work of new promoter Youthstream headed by President Giuseppe Luongo, a man who had been involved in Motocross since 1983. Youthstream took the World Motocross Championships and the Motocross of Nations to the next level as the series increased the visits overseas and benefitted from a strong TV and media coverage. Nowadays the riders involved in the Championships come from more than 30 different nations, the races are watched onsite by more than half a million spectators, as the number of TV viewers overtakes one billion.

In 2004 the classes were renamed. The 125cc was called MX2 and is now hosting mainly 250cc four stroke bikes. The 250cc class was renamed MX1 hosting 450cc four stroke machines as the former 500cc class became an open class, the MX3.

The professional set up was matched by excellent racing and new talents going through the ranks such as Steve Ramon, Ben Townley, Antonio "Tony" Cairoli, Tyla Rattray, Tommy Searle just to name a few.

Though this decade will be remembered for the breakthrough of Stefan Everts. The Belgian went on to take his 10th World Title and his 101st GP victory in 2006, his last year of professional racing before retiring and becoming Team Manager for the factory KTM Motocross Team. Everts set the records, which are now the ultimate challenge of the whole younger generations of professional Motocross racers.

2007-2016

The youngsters leave their mark on the FIM Motocross World Championship. Philippaerts, Cairoli, Desalle, Musquin, Roczen, Herlings, Febvre, Gajser and many more set the Championship on fire.

These years the young guns of the FIM Motocross World Championship have established their authority on the series.

Ramon succeeded to Everts in the MX1 series in 2007 after the season's dominator Coppins was taken out by a shoulder injury. Italian Cairoli took back the MX2 Title, as 2006 World Champion Pourcel was unable to defend the crown due to an up and down season which ended in a severe back injury.

After two years of team management, Stefan Everts celebrated the first World Title with Tyla Rattray winning the MX2 World Championship in 2008. That was also the year David Philippaerts won his maiden World Title in the MX1 despite it being only his second year in contention.

Year by year the level and speed that Grand Prix riders ride at progresses and now the most skilled ones are aiming to beat the older generations' records. In 2010 Cairoli decided to ride the revolutionary KTM 350cc on which the Italian claimed his fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth World Titles in six consecutive years. The Italian is breaking all the records, and continues to do so as he has won seventy-two Grand Prix's and sits second on the list of most Grand Prix wins, twenty nine behind 'The King' Stefan Everts.

In the MX2, young German talent Ken Roczen joined KTM and obtained his maiden World Title in 2011 in front of his home crowd in Gaillardorf, Germany. The talented German also wrote his name in the motocross history of his country before moving to the USA to live his American dream. With Roczen gone, 2012 and 13 have been dominated by Dutch phenomenon Jeffrey Herlings. At the ripe age of eighteen, Herlings has already added two FIM MX2 World Titles to his list of career achievements, which he obtained with two near perfect seasons. 2014 saw Herlings line-up for his third consecutive MX2 World Title with his main goal being to win every Grand Prix.

In 2014 Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Antonio Cairoli continued to chip away at Stefan Everts ten FIM Motocross World Championship titles taking title number eight in Trindade, Brazil. Jeremy Van Horebeek also stamped his name on the championship as the most consistent rider in the MXGP class banking eleven consecutive podium finishes. After missing the podium at round 13 in Finland, the Belgian bounced back at round 14 in the Czech Republic to take home his first ever MXGP class win. The twenty-four year old finished the season as the vice MXGP world champion.

While the racing in 2014 was amazing, all attention had already turned to 2015 with the championship expected to blow all other seasons out of the water. In 2015 MXGP's talent pool is deeper than ever especially with the arrival of American legend, multi-time AMA supercross and motocross champion, Ryan Villopoto. Villopoto is the first American with a résumé as rich as his to make the transition from the AMA series' to the FIM Motocross World Championship.

2014 produced one of the best seasons of MX2 racing the championship is yet to witness, starting with young French star Dylan Ferrandis' win of one race at round one in Qatar. The on-watchers were shocked, to say the least, that the usual dominating force Jeffrey Herlings appeared weaker than he had over the previous two seasons. The Dutch sensation Herlings then went on to admit he was recovering from a leg injury.

After not getting off to the greatest of starts, which allowed the likes of Arnaud Tonus to claim his first ever MX2 round win and Glenn Coldenhoff to take his first ever race win, things went from bad to worst for the two-time FIM MX2 World Champ Herlings when he broke his femur racing for charity right on the heels of wrapping up his third consecutive FIM MX2 World Championship. With Herlings out MX2 became 100% unpredictable, each race was intense from start to finish and each first time win for riders such as Jordi Tixier, Romain Febvre, Max Anstie and Tim Gajser was hard fought and earned.

In a heroic effort to clinch the title despite suffering from an unhealed broken femur, Herlings who had won twelve of the thirteen Grand Prix he contested was forced to settle for second with only four valuable points separating himself and his Red Bull KTM Factory Racing teammate Jordi Tixier. Tixier on the other hand used his 'never give up' attitude to silence his critics, bounce back from a dip and win his first ever FIM Motocross World Championship in impressive style.

It was expected to be epic and the 2015 FIM Motocross World Championship didn't fail to deliver, in terms of being the best season of racing ever.

Heading into round one, the MXGP of Qatar, all eyes were on Ryan Villopoto and the defending champ Antonio Cairoli. No one expected that neither Villopoto nor Cairoli would finish off the podium, and that is exactly what happened. Red Bull IceOne Husqvarna Factory Racing's Max Nagl was the early season dominator, he won both races in Qatar, had a shocker in Thailand but bounced back to finish inside the top two at the following four rounds. Nagl took the red plate at the MXGP of Trentino in Pietramurata, Italy, and held onto it for 6 rounds before breaking his ankle in the qualifying heat at round ten of the championship, his home grand prix, the MXGP of Germany. After Nagl's disappointment in Thailand, it was the Rockstar Energy Suzuki World MXGP's Clement Desalle who claimed the red plate and held it for three rounds before handing it over to Nagl. Desalle's season also came to an end early on when he dislocated his shoulder at round eight, the MXGP of France, which later required surgery. With both Nagl and Desalle on the sidelines, the breakout star of 2015, Yamaha Factory Racing Yamalube's Romain Febvre took the red plate for the first time in his career.

The series was fickle, but it was apparent that the rookie Romain Febvre was something special. The young Frenchman, youngest in the class to be precise, small in stature but with the potentially the greatest determination, clinched the red plate with both hands. He was crowned the 2015 FIM Motocross World Champion in the premier class MXGP with the statistics proving he is the worthy champion. The '461, Febvre's number, led the most laps, 190 compared to Nagl's 114. He won 15 races, 8 grand prix' and finished on the podium 13 times in succession. Febvre wrapped up the championship at the sixteenth round of eighteen, in Assen, The Netherlands and finally won it by 143 points over fellow Frenchman, Team HRC's Gautier Paulin. Paulin edged out his teammate Evgeny Bobryshev, from Russia, by 25 points. The Team HRC boys rounded off the podium in 2015.

Meanwhile in MX2, it was another dramatic year for the former two-times MX2 World Champion, Jeffrey Herlings. The Dutch sensation had some gnarly crashes throughout the season, which saw him miss round ten with a broken clavical and round twelve with a lacerated finger. The final time Herlings would line up in 2015 was at round thirteen, MXGP of The Czech Republic, where he broke his hip in qualifying and ended his season.

Despite the hardship of the number '84', Herlings, he led the most laps, had the most race wins and held the red plate for the first 13 rounds of the championship. Due to his injury, the MX2 title was blown open, which saw the rise of Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Pauls Jonass, Honda Gariboldi's young gun Tim Gajser, Monster Energy DRT Kawasaki's Max Anstie and Standing Construct Yamaha Yamalube's Valentin Guillod.

The fight was fierce. Max Anstie was the first rider to take a stand. The Brit took a double victory at the MXGP of Latvia and then again at the MXGP rounds of Belgium and Lombardia. He finished the season second on the leader board in terms of laps led, 147, behind Herlings who led 198 laps. Although Anstie had the speed, he didn't have the consistency, especially that of Pauls Jonass, who held the red plate briefly despite that fact he hadn't ever won a race.

Jonass did manage to reach that milestone when he won his first ever MX2 race in Mexico, but by then Tim Gajser already had the red plate and was putting in some consistent results. Nearing the end of the season, the pressure of potentially being crowned the 2015 FIM Motocross MX2 World Champion was starting to get to Jonass and Anstie. Both riders had some big crashes, which saw them throw away valuable points.

Gajser, on the other hand was riding solid. He took a surprise victory in the sand of Assen at MXGP of The Netherlands which made him top the charts as the rider with the most MX2 grand prix overalls, 5 compared to Herlings' 4 and Guillod's 3. A second place behind American Thomas Covington, who took his maiden MX2 race and grand prix win in Mexico, saw the Slovenian stretch his points lead ever so slightly.

The championship ended up going down to the wire with Gajser clinching the title in the final race of the season at the Monster Energy MXGP of The USA in Glen Helen. Jonass was forced to be content with second while Anstie rounded off the podium in third.

With the newly crowned and unexpected MX2 champion of Tim Gajser joining the MXGP class, and the return of Jeffrey Herlings to MX2 racing, 2016 was set to be yet another season of extraordinary competition.

The 2015 MXGP World champion Romain Febvre and the 2015 MX2 champion Tim Gajser started the championship chase early at Qatar. To the surprise of many, Honda Gariboldi's Gajser outperformed HRC Honda's Evgeny Bobryshev and reigning champion Febvre.

Gajser made it clear he was a title contender as a rookie but Romain Febvre answered by winning the following two rounds, capturing the red plate. Febvre held the points lead until Teutschenthal, where a tip over in the first moto gave the 243 Honda rider, Gajser, the edge he needed. Multi-time champion Antonio Cairoli showed he was ready to compete after winning his first GP in nearly a year.

The MXGP of Great Britain was an important point in the championship where the Yamaha rider of Febvre went down hard. Febvre was out of contention for two rounds allowing the points lead of Gajser to grow.

Gajser rode consistent until Assen, where the conditions got the best of him. But with Febvre losing out on points the battle between 2nd and 3rd in the championship tightened.

Afterwards, the championship headed to America. At the Monster Energy MXGP of Americas in Charlotte, North Carolina, Gajser was crowned FIM MXGP World Champion, only one year after winning the MX2 championship. The season came to an end at Glen Helen where the American Eli Tomac won his second GP in a row. It was KTM's Antonio Cairoli who finished the season 2nd followed by Husqvarna's Max Nagl.

The first round of MX2 in Qatar started strong for title hopeful Dylan Ferrandis. Herlings claimed the first victory of the year going 1-1 with Ferrandis on his heels in both motos.

Round 2 in Thailand saw the Kawasaki rider of Ferrandis dislocate his shoulder after going down in qualifying. Herlings capitalized and rode to another 1-1 finish. In moto 2 it was the hard charging Husqvarna rider Max Anstie finishing 2nd after crashing hard earlier in the day.

With Ferrandis injured Herlings continued his winning form going undefeated in his home race of Valkenswaard marking his 50th GP win. He continued to be undefeated the following 4 rounds. However, the MXGP of Trentino saw the number 4 of Ferrandis ready to challenge after returning to racing only one week before. After a hard fought battle Ferrandis handed Herlings his first loss of the year in moto 1. Seemingly unfazed the number 84 KTM of Herlings claimed the overall after a going 2-1 on the day and then won four more rounds before breaking his collar bone.

After missing the MXGPs' of Loket, Belgium, and Switzerland due to his injury, Herlings finished the season strong to claim the FIM MX2 world championship at the first ever Monster Energy MXGP of Americas held on the dirt track of Charlotte Motor Speedway. Jeremy Seewer's consistent season aboard his Suzuki secured him a well earned 2nd overall in the championship. Third place wasn't decided until the final round at Monster Energy MXGP of USA, where Yamaha's Benoit Paturel edged out the Englishman of Max Anstie.

In 2017 the season started out at the all familiar circuit of Qatar, but there were some notable changes coming into the first few rounds of the new MXGP season. The biggest and most anticipated change was that of the 2016 FIM MX2 World Champion, Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Jeffrey Herlings moving up into the premier MXGP class. Aside from Herlings joining the field, Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Antonio Cairoli would start the season fully fit and healthy against a borage of competitors including the reigning FIM World Champion, Team HRC's Tim Gajser and 2015 Champion Romain Febvre.

When the gate dropped on the new mesh starting grid in Qatar Cairoli made it clear he was back to his winning ways as he took the first overall of the 2017 season all whilst battling with Gajser. For Jeffrey Herlings the opening round and the several following where a challenge while he healed from an off-season injury along with the realization that he had underestimated the depth and talent of the MXGP field.

A notable point of the 2017 season was that of the MXGP of Europe in Valkenswaard, Netherlands. While it was Rockstar Energy Husqvarna Factory Racing's Gautier Paulin who took the overall win, much of the attention was instead on the resurgence of Jeffrey Herlings whom was finally starting to show the speed many assumed he was capable of as he finished 2nd.

One round later, at the MXGP of Latvia in Kegums, Herlings fans rejoiced as Jeffrey went on to take double victories for the overall win, the first of his MXGP career. While Herlings was on the rise it was the beginning of the issues for Gajser as he would suffer injury in a hard crash through the roller section. A stop later in Germany only added insult to the injury when Gajser cross rutted on a high-speed section of the track resulting in a DNF.

While Gajser healed, a new winner in 2017 surfaced by the likes of Monster Energy Kawasaki's Clement Desalle. The Belgian took the MXGP of France overall by one point over Cairoli and quickly proved at the next stop, the MXGP of Russia, that it was no fluke as he again claimed an overall win.

The season then became a battle of giants between Antonio Cairoli and Jeffrey Herlings. The first epic battle came at the Fiat Professional FULLBACK MXGP of Lombardia where a game of cat and mouse ended in favor of Cairoli. 2 stops later at the MXGP of Belgium the duo again battled head to head but the determined Herlings topped the veteran of Cairoli.

Herlings would also win the MXGP of Switzerland Presented by iXS cutting down Cairoli's points lead in the process. When the series headed to Sweden misfortune struck Herlings as he had a mechanical issue and lost points back to Cairoli. What was too little too late for Herlings provided to be just what the doctor ordered for Cairoli who went on to claim his 9th FIM Motocross World Championship at the MXGP of The Netherlands taking place in Assen.

In the MX2 category for 2017 Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Pauls Jonass returned from injury as the lead KTM MX2 rider with Herlings now aboard the 450 machine. Lining up alongside Jonass was a long list of competitors with massive talent from American Rockstar Energy Husqvarna Factory Racing's Thomas Covington and Switzerland native and Suzuki World MX2's Jeremy Seewer to young guns previously from the EMX250 category like Monster Energy DRT Kawasaki's Darian Sanayei and Rockstar Energy Husqvarna Factory Racing's Thomas Kjer Olsen.

To start the season Jonass won in Qatar while Seewer took the Indonesian victory. The MXGP of Trentino saw a new face stood on the top step of the podium, the young Spaniard Jorge Prado. Jonass would win next at Valkenswaard for the MXGP of Europe before heading to his home GP, the MXGP of Latvia. While hopes were high for Jonass to win at home the cards instead fell in favor of the EMX250 recruit and MX2 rookie Thomas Kjer Olsen.

After Latvia Jonass gained traction and won 3 of the next six but Seewer did the same. As the title chase was close Jorge Prado claimed his 2nd overall of his career in Belgium. As the season headed towards a conclusion Jonass managed his points lead well as Seewer played catch-up. In the end the final round at Pays de Montbéliard decided the championship to the favor of Jonass.

The 2018 Championship reached a new milestone for world motocross with an amazing schedule of 20 rounds kicking off at the stunning MXGP of Patagonia-Argentina with new contenders in the MXGP class such as Monster Energy Kawasaki Racing team's Julien Lieber and 2017 MX2 Vice Champion Jeremy Seewer on a Wilvo Yamaha.

While many were intrigued with the rookies almost all eyes were on defending champion Antonio Cairoli and his younger teammate Jeffrey Herlings. Herlings came into the season healthy proving his speed and determination against Cairoli in Neuquen to take the first red plate from a massive deficit with a last lap pass.

The pair continued to spar off as the season progressed with Cairoli taking the red plate at RedSand, Spain as Herlings took second overall. In the next seven rounds Herlings took 6 wins while Cairoli took none and Monster Energy Kawasaki Racing Team's Clement Desalle took a lone victory in Russia.

The series was headed for Lombardia, Italy when news broke of Herlings injuring himself during training. The injury kept Herlings off the starting line in Italy and Cairoli took full advantage closing the points lead which had previously grown.

A mere two weeks later Herlings was back on the starting line at the MXGP of Indonesia in Pangkal Pinang where he fought through pain and miraculously came away with the win while Cairoli injured his hand. From Indonesia to Turkey Herlings was impeccable and took his first MXGP World Title at his home round in Assen for the MXGP of the Netherlands.

With his family, fellow countrymen, and team Herlings made history taking the title at the conclusion of race win with a defiant win. Though already champion Herlings came back to the line and took another win for the overall. Perhaps the most dominant season of all time at the highest level of Motocross was topped off by Herlings with another double victory and overall win at the MXGP of Italy in Imola.

The 2018 MX2 season was in many ways comparable to that of the bigger MXGP class with the teammates of Pauls Jonass and Jorge Prado from Red Bull KTM fighting each other for the title. While the defending champion was Jonass, Prado was the young star on the rise. At the beginning of the season Prado was recovering from a winter elbow injury but caught up to the pace of Jonass as soon as Valkenswaard in the Netherlands where the two first battled.

Through the first three rounds Jonass was unbeatable with 6 race wins and 3 overall wins to match. When the series landed in Trentino, Italy, however the young Spaniard split race wins with the American Thomas Covington on the way to his first win. In the next 16 races of the year Prado took 11 wins opposed to 2 from Jonass as 1 a piece went to Thomas Kjer Olsen, Calvin Vlaanderen, and Covington.

The season finale in Imola, Italy was set to host the championship deciding races but a knee injury to Jonass from a previous battle with Prado left the Latvian out of contention giving the gold plate and 2018 MX2 Championship title to the 17 year old Jorge Prado!

2019 was another epic season, with incredible action in both MX2 and MXGP. The season once again kicked-off at the picturesque Argentina. Then the series headed back to Europe before making the trip across to Asia for two Indonesian rounds, with the championship concluding in Shanghai, China.

In MX2 Spaniard, Jorge Prado was dominant as he took 16 GP wins out of 18 and a total of 31 race wins, having missed the British GP due to a shoulder injury. This allowed the Rockstar Energy Husqvarna rider, Thomas Kjer Olsen to take the red plate and hold on to it for a few rounds in the beginning of the season, but of course Prado was crowned the MX2 World Champion in 2019. His team-mate Tom Vialle had a fantastic rookie season as he finished fourth in the championship standings, missing out on the podium to Jago Geerts by just six points.

In MXGP fans were treated to some of the most epic battles in the history of MXGP, as we watched Tim Gajser and the 9-time World Champion, Antonio Cairoli in combat at almost every round in the beginning of the season, while Jeffrey Herlings was side-lined with a foot injury sustained in pre-season training.

One of the highlights of the season came from the MXGP of Trentino in Italy, as Gajser and Cairoli race wheel-to-wheel from start to finish, treating fans to a nail-biting race. Gajser won race one by just 01.081 seconds, while in race two saw Cairoli crash out on the last lap, handing Gajser a comfortable win.

As Herlings made his comeback, in Latvia he was struck with some more bad luck after a fall in the opening race sighting lap left him with a broken foot. Not aware of the extent of the injury Herlings still lined-up and went on to win the opening race, following a battle with Arnaud Tonus. Disaster also struck Cairoli after a crash left him with a dislocated shoulder and would mean he would have to miss the remainder of the 2019 season, putting his hopes of a 10th world title on hold.

Gajser won a total of nine GP's and 16 races, going on to claim his 3rd World Title, his second in MXGP. Second was Jeremy Seewer and in third was Standing Construct KTM's, Glenn Coldenhoff who finished the season on a high with 4 race wins and 2 Grand Prix victories.

The year concluded at the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations as Glenn Coldenhoff, Jeffrey Herlings and Calvin Vlaanderen made history, going on to dominate the world and putting the Netherlands in the history of winners, as they won the Chamberlain Trophy in Assen in front of their home crowd.

MXON HISTORY

MONSTER ENERGY FIM MOTOCROSS OF NATIONS 73 YEARS OF HISTORY !

BRITISH DOMINANCE

Motocross, known as "scramble", when it was first introduced in the 1920's, developed quickly in the 30's. Following the war, the FIM elevated the sport at international level by presenting the Motocross des Nations (official title in French, run with 500cc motorcycles), a classic event which has been run annually ever since.

The introductory event was held near the Hague, in the Netherlands on July 20th of 1947. Three nations were invited to take part – the Netherlands, Belgium and Great Britain. The Belgian rider Auguste Mingels was the fastest, but the A team of Great Britain with Bill Nicholson (BSA), Fred Rist (BSA) and Bob Ray (Ariel) won the first team title, ahead of the Belgian "B" squad.

The second "Nations" contest took place in August 1948 in La Fraineuse, close to the Belgian city of Spa. National federations of France, Sweden and Luxembourg were also invited for an event dominated by the local team. Nic Jansen, Marcel Cox and Andre Milhoux took first, second and fifth places, clinching the first Trophy for Belgium.

At the end of August 1949, it was time for Great Britain to host the final competition of the decade at the famous Brands Hatch circuit. The British team won the competition for the second time, thus keeping the Cup indefinitely. The ACU then donated another Cup for the competition's winning team. The Vice President of the FIM International Sporting Commission Peter Chamberlain had always been a strong supporter of Motocross and worked a great deal on behalf of the national teams' competition. After he passed away in 1954, the cup was officially named after him and became known as the 'Chamberlain Trophy'.

In the 50s, the British dominance was quite strong as the team clinched seven out of a possible 10 victories in the Motocross des Nations before 1960. The only exceptions were the victories of Belgium in 1951 and Sweden in 1955 and 1958. A competition for 250cc machines, named the Trophee des Nations, was created by the FIM in 1961. Victories in the first years were clinched by the Swedes after two initial successes for Great Britain. In the 500cc team event Great Britain lost against Sweden in 1961/62, but then won five years in a row, reaching the number of 14 victories in 20 years, however their last win was in 1967 and it would take them another 27 years before winning again.

HARD FIGHTS

In Kishinev – then in the Soviet Union – the Russian team took the Chamberlain Trophy for the first time. Then it was time for Belgium, as they won again at Farleigh Castle in 1969, after chasing the trophy for 18 years. Legendary names of Roger de Coster, Joel Robert and Sylvian Geboers took their team to victory.

The 70s saw a big change on a mechanical level, with the massive arrival of Japanese manufacturers to Europe. Suzuki started first, quickly followed by Yamaha, Honda and Kawasaki. The first years of the decade were shared between Sweden and Belgium.

In 1974 team USA made their debut at the event, with Jim Pomeroy (Bultaco), Brad Lackey (Husqvarna), Marty Tripes (Husqvarna) and Jimmy Weinert (Kawasaki) racing for the United States. That year they finished second, just ahead of the Russian squad including the 250cc World Champion Guennady Moisseev.

In 1975 in Czechoslovakia, the local team finished ahead of Belgium – despite the presence of three World Champions, Roger de Coster, Harry Everts and Gaston Rahier – and Great Britain. Two wins of the Belgian team preceded the second victory of the Russian team, still with Guennady Moisseev. In the Trophee des Nations contest, Belgium conquered all titles except one (Russia in 1979) as of 1969 until 1980.

In the Motocross des Nations Belgium won two more titles in '79 and '80, before the American dominance came into effect. Having missed both events in the two previous years, the American team arrived at Lommel in Belgium in September 1981 for the Trophee des Nations with four Honda riders managed by the former World Champion Roger de Coster. Danny Laporte, Chuck Sun, Johnny O'Mara and Donnie Hansen as they destroyed the opposition, and one week later won again in the Motocross des Nations in Bielefeld, Germany.

Changes were made in the team from one year to the next, but it did not change anything. The American field was full of top riders during the 80s, and De Coster's team got eight victories (four in each team competition) in four years. In 1980 the FIM decided to introduce a third Motocross team contest with 125cc motorcycles: the Coupe des Nations. The Italian team led by Michele Rinaldi won the first two titles, followed by Belgium (with Eric Geboers) and the Netherlands (with Kees Van der Ven and John Van de Berk).

NEW FORMAT

In 1985 a new format combining all three classes in a single Motocross des Nations event was introduced by the FIM, gathering all three classes (125cc, 250cc and 500cc) with one rider in each class and three races per event: 125/500, 125/250, 250/500.

The Americans could not be stopped for over a decade, apart from 1994, as they went on to claim 17 consecutive victories (13 in the Motocross des Nations, and the last four of the Trophée des Nations). Their teams always integrated world-recognized top riders, with Danny "Magoo" Chandler winning all four heats in the team contests in 1982, but perhaps the greatest win of all came at Maggiora in 1986 when America's trio of David Bailey, Ricky Johnson and Johnny O'Mara went through all three heats unbeaten by the rest of the world.

After Great Britain's win in 1994, it was Belgium's turn to be back on top of the competition in 1995 with Stefan Everts, Joel Smets and Marnicq Bervoets. But the Americans were still there. In '96 in Jerez, the team driven by multi-champion Jeremy McGrath beat the French and Belgian teams. Then for the following three years, Team USA missed out on a podium appearance, which allowed Belgium to claim two more victories as well as a first crown for Italy, with World Champion, Andrea Bartolini and Alessio Chiodi and Claudio Federici flying the flag in Brazil, in 1999, ahead of France and Belgium.

Just a year later the Americans were back at St Jean d'Angély, led by their new top rider Ricky Carmichael. In Namur 2001, it was finally the turn of the French team to clinch their first victory with David Vuillemin, Yves Demaria and Luigi Séguy, beating the Belgians on their home track. Italy won a perturbed 2002 edition, and Belgium - still with the record holder in individual World titles Stefan Everts - won the 2003 and 2004 contest, before the US comeback in the last five editions, as James Stewart replaced Carmichael as the team's top rider in 2006. Carmichael was back in 2007, celebrating his last Motocross appearance in Budds Creek while Stewart was part of the 2008 winning team.

In 2009 the event came back to Italy after an absence of 23 years, this time in Franciacorta. The American Team won the Chamberlain Trophy again but failed in repeating their countrymen's performance in 1986 at Maggiora. The trio made of Ryan Dungey, Jake Weimer and Ivan Tedesco struggled against, France, Belgium and Italy. Eventually USA won from France and Belgium while a crash of Italy's top rider and multi-time World Champion Antonio Cairoli in heat three ended the team's hopes of victory.

In 2010 the FIM Motocross of Nations was back in the USA where the home riders obtained their 21st Chamberlain Trophy in Lakewood, Denver, thanks to the performance of Ryan Dungey, Trey Canard and Andrew Short. The German team, who was leading the standings after race two thanks to the superb racing of youngster Ken Roczen and Max Nagl, were finally second followed by the Belgian team in third.

The following year it was a turning point for the event, as Monster Energy played an important role and became the title sponsor of the 2011 FIM Motocross of Nations. Saint Jean d'Angély in France was the chosen circuit for the 65th edition of the MXoN and the French fans witnessed a dramatic ending. The French team got into the final heat leading the classification with a nine points advantage over team USA, but in the decisive heat Pourcel ended up with an unfortunate DNF allowing the Americans to obtain their 22nd victory ahead of France and Australia, who were very consistent throughout the whole event.

In 2012, the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations returned to Lommel, the same circuit where Team USA started to dominate the event beating the Belgians on home soil in 1981. During the 2012 edition Team USA struggled a lot in the deep sand of the famous Belgian circuit and could only manage to finish on the third step of the podium, breaking their impressive seven-win streak. German team was the most consistent and obtained their maiden Chamberlain Trophy, while the home team finished with a well-deserved second position.

2013's Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations in Teutschenthal, Germany, was probably one of the most anticipated events ever in the history of motocross. Heading into the event Team Germany would be defending the crown on their home turf while Team Belgium and USA would be lining up with hopes of redeeming themselves after a bitter defeat the previous year in Lommel, Belgium. While the pressure was laid heavily upon the local boys Team Germany's Max Nagl, Ken Roczen and Dennis Ulrich, a crash which resulted in injury for Dennis Ulrich soon blew the teams hopes of a podium finish leaving the race to be ruled by Team Belgium and Team USA. With the final waving of the chequered flag it was surprisingly Team Belgium who narrowly took the victory ahead of Team USA. While the biggest surprise was Italy's third place finish after their captain, seven-time FIM Motocross World Champion, Antonio Cairoli dominated both his races for the second year in a row.

Onto 2014, the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations tackled the loamy circuit of Kegums, Latvia for the first time in history of the track. With the base of the circuit being classed as sandy, yet nothing like Lommel, the defending champions Team Belgium were the favourites. Of course, Team USA had their devoted fans backing them too while the eventual winners Team France were the most criticised team going in with all three riders, Gautier Paulin, Steven Frossard and Dylan Ferrandis being Kawasaki riders and KTM's FIM MX2 World Champion Jordi Tixier being excluded from the 2014 squad. Despite the harsh criticism, Team France couldn't be flawed on the weekend as Paulin rode amazing to dominate every race, which was earnestly backed up by the outstanding performances of teammates Frossard and Ferrandis. With Team France being victorious, Team Belgium also rode solid with their team of Jeremy Van Horebeek, Kevin Stribos and Julien Lieber for second while Team USA made up of Ryan Dungey, Eli Tomac and Jeremy Martin were dropped back to the third step of the podium.

In 2015 history was made as Team France, Romain Febvre, Gautier Paulin and Marvin Musquin, lined up as the defending champions on home soil and won! It was the first time Team France have ever won back-to-back and only their third time ever winning the event which is known as the summit of the season. What made the 2015 edition of the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations extra special was the fact it was held in Ernée, an entire decade after the memorable 2005 Motocross of Nations which took place on the very same track. Team France were by far the hot favourites heading in with Romain Febvre being the reigning World Champion and Gautier Paulin the runner up in the prestigious MXGP series. Marvin Musquin added to the already lethal French team as the runner up in the American motocross championship.

The ones expected to threaten France's throne were, as always, the Americans. Representing the stars and stripes in 2015 was, Justin Barcia, Jeremy Martin and Cooper Webb flew the flag high. All three riders put in solid performances with Barcia winning in MXGP while Martin and Webb backed him up with silver medals. It went down to the wire, but unfortunately no-one could match the speed of MXGP's gold plate holder, riding for France, Romain Febvre and also that of Marvin Musquin, both Frenchmen won their respective classes, Open and MX2, while Gautier Paulin also put in a solid ride for 4th in MXGP.

With the final waving of the chequered flag, Team France won by a narrow 2 points over Team USA, while Team Belgium, Jeremy Van Horebeek, Julien Lieber and Ken De Dycker, managed to round off the podium. The Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations reached another level of epicness in 2015. The venue was packed with an awesome crowd unafraid of showing their enthusiasm and love for motocross.

In 2016 we expected nothing less as the event took place in Maggiora, Italy, two whole decades since it played host to one of the greatest events in history, the 1986 Motocross of Nations. Italy provided a fabulous crowd, as it is known as one of the most motocross mad countries in the world. The 2016 Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations brought the American team of Jason Anderson, Cooper Webb, and Alex Martin to compete against team France.

Team France, came into the weekend with a goal of winning the Chamberlain Trophy for third consecutive year, was represented by Romain Febvre, Gautier Paulin, and Benoit Paturel. In the first race Glenn Coldenhoff of the Netherlands grabbed the holeshot but shuffled back after being passed by Italy's Antonio Cairoli. It was Romain Febvre making moves though, he charged forward passing several riders including Cairoli taking the race win for France, Strijbos, Webb, and Van Horebeek rounded out the top 5. Race 2 was all team USA's Jason Anderson out front. Battles ensued behind him between Herlings, Paulin, and Tonus. Herlings finished in second after remounting his KTM due to a slide out, Paulin then made his way to the podium ahead of Tonus.

Team USA was then in the points lead but immediately suffered a major blow when Anderson was landed on after crossing the finish. The third and final race of the day had Herlings in the lead, and it was left to Cooper Webb for the United States; Webb was positioned well in the race but eventually fell and lost ground. The deciding moment wasn't until the final lap where France's Romain Febvre made his way around the Kawasaki of Searle. Herlings won the race but the late move from Febvre gave France the single point they needed to win in epic form, the Netherlands finished second followed by team USA.

In 2017 the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations returned to the historic and epic venue of Matterley Basin, United Kingdom for the first time in 11 years. Among the top challengers for the Chamberlain Trophy would again be the winner of the last 3 consecutive Motocross of Nations, Team France who was made-up of Gautier Paulin, Romain Febvre, and Christophe Charlier. Looking to steal the title as the best country in the world of motocross was the Netherlands Jeffrey Herlings, Glenn Coldenhoff and Brian Bogers and the UK's Max Anstie, Dean Wilson, and Tommy Searle.

As the gate dropped for race one for team Netherlands, Glenn Coldenhoff took the Fox holeshot but the hometown hero, Max Anstie was right there and took the lead for Great Britain. Behind Coldenhoff was France's Gautier Paulin who took over second when Coldenhoff made mistake over a jump. At the end of race 1 Anstie won ahead of a hard charging Tim Gajser and Gautier Paulin. Prior to race 2 staring France was already in the lead of the nation's classification ahead of the Netherlands as team Great Britain's Tommy Searle had bike issues in race 1. Race 2 was the Open and MX2 categories and the Netherlands and France were again strong with Herlings leading and Febvre in second. Herlings crashed on the same jump which his teammate, Coldenhoff, made a mistake but the "Bullet" shot back to the front of the field with a pass on Febvre. Herlings won the race ahead of Febvre and the USA's Zach Osborne.

The 3rd and final race would decide it all and the 3-time defending champs of France still led the way over the Netherlands. Anstie took the final holeshot but Febvre was right with him. Anstie later made a mistake on the same jump as Coldenhoff and Herlings did prior handing the lead over to Febvre. While Anstie rebounded and fought back to the lead Herlings did his best passing Febvre as well but it would be too little too late as Anstie won ahead of Herlings and Febvre. When the scores were tallied it was clear that France was the victor with 10 point less than the Netherlands who would again have to settle for 2nd while the home team, Great Britain, returned to the podium for the first time in 20 years!

2018 saw the return of the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations to USA at none other than the famous RedBud circuit in Buchanan, Michigan. The American venue was packed with one of the largest MXoN crowds ever seen who gloriously showed their enthusiasm and love for global motocross racing. The home team USA was led by the country's best riders Eli Tomac, Justin Barcia, and Aaron Plessinger and cheered on by the patriotic and devoted American fans. Italy's team of Antonio Cairoli, Alessandro Lupino, and Michele Cervellin put together an incredible weekend finishing 2nd only 2 points back of 1st.

Meanwhile the team from the Netherlands took the final spot on the podium as Jeffrey Herlings and Glenn Coldenhoff showed incredible heart with 1-2-1-1 finishes after the Dutch MX2 rider Calvin Vlaanderen was out with an injury. It was team France's Gautier Paulin, Jordi Tixier, and Dylan Ferrandis making history again however, lined up as the defending champions they continued the French domination of the Chamberlain Trophy for the 5th year in succession!

In 2019, the 73rd edition of the Motocross of Nations headed to the Netherlands, hosted at the famous Assen TT circuit. This was the much-anticipated year for the Dutch fans, as Team Netherlands were the heavy favourites going into the weekend, having finished on the podium for the past few years.

The team, led by Glenn Coldenhoff, who went 1-1- the previous year at RedBud, USA, alongside Jeffrey Herlings and Calvin Vlaanderen, dominated the rest of the world, making history as they won for the very first time and they did so in front of their home crowd. Coldenhoff repeated his 1-1 result as he won in the Open class, while Herlings and Vlaanderen finished 2-4, 10-10. Joining the team for this special occasion was not only thousands of Dutch fans, but also the King of the Netherlands. His Majesty King of The Netherlands Willem-Alexander took the opportunity to meet with the riders to mark the historic occasion.

Team Belgium's Jeremy Van Horebeek, Jago Geerts and Kevin Strijbos had a strong ride and finished in 2nd with 47 points, while Team Great Britain made their third podium appearance in a row, as Shaun Simpson, Nathan Watson and Adam Sterry stood proudly on the final step of the podium 11 points behind the Belgian Team.

In 2020, the Motocross of Nations makes a return to the historic Ernée, as we return to the French circuit for another unforgettable weekend!

COURTNEY DUNCAN 2019 WOMEN'S WORLD CHAMPION !

The 2019 season has been a memorable one for Courtney Duncan, as she was finally able to secure her maiden Women's Motocross World Title.

After previously being hit with bad luck and injuries on more than several occasions which prevented her from winning the WMX Championship, the New Zealander came into the 2019 racing season more determined than ever.

Duncan has always been a major protagonist in the series since coming onto the scene back in 2016. That very same year she finished fifth in the championship, with five race wins and three Grand Prix victories under her belt.

In 2017, she returned to try again and following a season long battle with Kiara Fontanesi and Livia Lancelot, Duncan finished third in the standings despite missing two GP's and just two points shy of the title. She still had a really strong year, with four race wins and three GP victories.

A year later, bad luck struck once again as an injury forced the New Zealander to miss the final two rounds of her 2018 campaign, which meant she would not become champion just yet.

But 2019 was a turning point for Duncan. After being twice denied of the world title, 2019 was going to be her year as she was more determined than ever to secure the gold plate.

Going into the season strong, Duncan proved that she was a true champion as she went on to win 9 races out of 10, only to miss out on the perfect score at the opening round in Valkenswaard as a massive crash over the finish jump cost her a podium finish. But she made up for it and claimed the next 4 overall podium victories, finally winning the WMX Championship with a 30-point lead over the Dutch rider, Nancy van de Ven. Courtney Duncan eventually achieved her lifetime ambition in Afyon, Turkey with his DRT Kawasaki Team.

In what can only be described as an unforgettable season, Duncan is ready to defend her title in 2020!

ROAN VAN DE MOOSDIJK 2019 EMX250 CHAMPION

Roan van de Moosdijk has had an impressive year in 2019, as he was not only crowned the 2019 EMX250 Champion but also made his very first Grand Prix wildcard appearance and a MX2 podium finish in Afyon, Turkey.

Born and raised in the Netherlands, Roan began his life in motocross at a very young age, often spending his time at the track playing with toy bikes, while his father raced the national championship in Holland.

His first bike was a PW50 Yamaha, which he started riding at just three years old. By the age of six, he entered his first race and since then has secured 5 Dutch titles, between 2007 and 2013. In 2014, Roan finished second in the European final of the 85cc class, in Finland, and by 2016 he made the move onto the bigger 125cc bike. The same year he placed second at the Junior World Championship in Russia.

By 2018 he was racing in the EMX250 championship, finishing third overall and from then on, he set his sights on securing the title the following year.

2019 was an exciting year for the 19-year-old rider. He won a total of six races and made seven out of a possible eight podium appearances, three of which he was first overall (Orlyonok – Russia, Kegums – Latvia and Lommel - Belgium). Eventually he claimed the EMX250 title in Uddevalla, Sweden, by six points over Stephen Rubini.

He also made three very successful GP wild card appearances in MX2, finishing 6th overall in Portugal and then going on to secure his first podium in the group as he finished 5-3 for 3rd overall in Turkey. He also made the trip across the world with his F&H Racing Team to compete in Shanghai for the JUST1 MXGP of China Presented by Hehui Investment Group.

To top off an already impressive season, Roan was also in the running to be selected to represent Dutch team for the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations. He arrived in Assen as the reserve rider and was right there to celebrate with his teammates as Glen Coldenhoff, Jeffrey Herlings and Calvin Vlaanderen who made the history, winning the Chamberlain Trophy for the very first time.

In 2020, the F&H Kawasaki rider will race the full season of the FIM Motocross World Championship as he makes the move up to the MX2 class and with the success of his GP appearances last year, including that podium in Turkey, you can expect to see him as a regular podium finisher next season.

MATTIA GUADAGNINI

2019 WORLD AND EUROPEAN 125CC CHAMPION

Three major championships, in a single season for the young Italian rider, Mattia Guadagnini, as he not only triumphed in EMX125 Presented by FMF Racing Championship but he went on to secure the Italian, European and Junior World titles in 2019.

His motocross story starts at the age of four, when he was gifted his very first bike by his father. His father was an enduro rider himself, racing at national and regional level, who just so happened to be a huge fan of motorsports, inspiring the young rider to peruse a career in racing.

A young Guadagnini first entered some local races before taking part in national competitions and winning his first Italian title in 2011. He then continued racing the national series for the next couple of years, including some European races too and in 2014 secured his second Italian Championship in the 85cc class.

In 2017, the young Italian raced his first full season in the EMX125 class, where he finished 14th and in 2018 he was second at the Junior World Championship, also claiming the 125 title in Italy.

2019 was the year that Mattia Guadagnini would make it triple gold, as he secured the national, European and World titles with the Maddii Racing Husqvarna team. In the EMX125 Presented by FMF Racing Championship, his scorecard contained 6 race wins, and 7 out of a possible 7 podiums, three of which he was first overall (Valkenswaard – Netherlands, Pietramurata - Trentino and Mantova - Lombardia).

Mattia Guadagnini arrived in Uddevalla, Sweden, for the last round of the EMX125 Presented by FMF Racing series leading the Championship by 20 points, he didn't take too many risks throughout the two races and finished third overall with 3-3 on the weekend and it was enough to win the championship with a tally of 305 points, 13 points more than second placed rider Tom Guyon.

Following his impressive season, Guadagnini also made his first Grand Prix appearance in Afyon for the MXGP of Turkey followed by the JUST1 MXGP of China as he made the trip to Shanghai for the Chinese MXGP. Lining up against the MX2 boys, the young rider didn't crack under pressure and had a very strong ride, finishing 10th in Turkey and 11th overall in China.

In 2020, the Mattia Guadagnini will race on the 250cc Husqvarna as he takes on the EMX250 class together with Husqvarna Junior Racing Maddii squad.

MIKE KRAS 2019 EMX2T CHAMPION

Mike Kras has returned to his winning ways as he was crowned the 2019 EMX2T Presented by FMF Racing Champion.

Born in Rotterdam, Netherlands in 1988, Kras made his first appearance in the Motocross World Championship back in 2007, competing in MX2. His best result was in 2009, in Lierop where he finished fifth overall in the highly competitive class. He then continued with his GP career before a major injury forced him to take a step back. In 2014, the Dutchman sustained a broken neck, back and ribs and also collapsing his lung. Since that day, Kras has taken a completely new outlook to racing, taking a much more relaxed approach, considering the sport more of a hobby.

In the beginning of his career, he was initially focused on competing in the World Championship but with a serious injury and a new outlook to his racing career, Kras returned to racing, competing in what was known as the EMX300 class back in 2015. He raced two events that season, his home GP in Valkenswaard, where he finished 3rd overall and in Lommel, Belgium, where he finished 2nd. With the taste of racing back in his system, he made a return and raced the entire 2016 EMX300 championship.

This was the year that Kras claimed his maiden European Championship. On his way to winning the EMX300 Championship, he finished on the podium at every round, four of which he was second overall. That year he claimed one overall victory, finishing 7 points ahead of Belgian, Yentel Martens.

In 2017, he returned with the hope of defending his title, but unfortunately missed out to the Brit, Brad Anderson, finishing second. While he missed out on the European title, he did however claim the British 2-stroke trophy that year.

Back for more in 2018, Kras suffered a blow to his championship chase, when he didn't finish both races in Great Britain, which ultimately played a key part in losing him the championship. It all came down to the final round in Imola, Italy. Despite winning both races, it was not enough to secure the title once more, as the Dutchman was forced to settle for second place, two years in a row, with just a mere 5 points separating him from the gold plate.

In 2019, Mike Kras returned to his winning ways as he was crowned European Champion of the newly renamed EMX2T Presented by FMF Racing class. Last season, he had an impressive year, with four race wins, four out of seven podium finishes, three of which he was first overall, on his scorecard.

But it didn't come easy, as once again fans were treated to a showdown at the last round in Afyon, Turkey, with the championship being decided at the chequered flag of the final race of the weekend as both Kras and Anderson arrived in Afyon equal in championship points. Kras finished third in race one and made up for it in race two, securing the championship by just one point!

Mike Kras stood tall on the top step of the podium as he celebrated his achievement of being crowned the 2019 FIM European Motocross 2T Presented by FMF Racing Champion.
